MATRIMONIAL.

There are 16 divorce cases on the docket of the Boyle circuit court, which begins Monday, says the Advocate.

The marriage of Dr. Arthur W Johnstone, of Cincinnati, and Miss Ethel Anne Chamberlin, now of Brooklyn, N. Y., is announced.

In Dickinson county, Va., William Hogston, aged 71 years, was married to Mrs. Mary Mullins, aged 67, after being divorced from her for over 20 years. This was Hogston's fourth marriage. He has 27 living children.

We did not know till we saw it in the Somerset Paragon that Bro. A. R. Dyche, of the London Echo, had married again. The happy event occurred in the last days of the old year. The bride was Mrs. M. E. Jackson, a wealthy and handsome widow. Good luck to them.

Fashionable Gloves.

Glazed kid in all the tints of beige, red, brown and gray, either stitched with self color or with black, is the popular glove for street wear. These same shades come in suede gloves, which still hold their own with many ladies against all the allurements of the more dressy glazed kid. The embroidery used on the new suede gloves is rather heavier than last season and frequently shows a combination of black intermixed with the shade of the glove. The New York Tribune also reports that for tailor made gowns there is a glove made of a fine dogskin, stitched with black and finished with the patent snap catch. A novelty in a black glove is embroidered, stitched and finished with white. Bottle green gloves are again in vogue, and the woman of fads will find that her new purple, green or brown gown can have gloves to match it exactly. Evening gloves are mostly white or black. The style of having the glove match the gown is gradually dying out.

A Novel Pincushion. The principal article needed to make a cushion described in Good Housekeeping is a small jointed doll about seven inches high. After attending to the undergarments make the dress skirt double. like a child's old fashioned creeper. Before sewing it to the doll stuff (not too full) with lamb's wool. A few stitches to the underskirt will hold it in place. Make the puff sleeves of the bodice full, stuffing them also. One sleeve may hold common pins, the other black pins, while the skirt can be used for the fancy stickpins so much worn.

Tea should always be made with enameled a cream white, with the high freshly boiled water, not water that has lights of the decoration gilded and burboiled before.

CARD LEAVING.

The Litiquette of Today as Observed by Our English Cousins.

As so many of our customs are borrowed from across the water, it may be of interest to learn the English etiquette Articles Convenient For Both Sexes and of card leaving, which in point of fact Easily Made at Home-Minute Direc- differs almost not at all from the etiquette prevailing in our large cities.

When a lady who calls without her husband finds the mistress of the house Numbered with gifts that ingenious at home, she should, after the call is women can make at home and which are made, leave one of her husband's cards for the hostess and one for the hostess' husband if she is married. These cards to the servant who opens the door for the caller's exit. If her busband calls An attractive watch stand may be with her and has seen his host and hostess, no card is left. If the host has not with his wife leaves a card for him. Where neither host nor hostess is at home, one of the lady's cards must be left and two of her husband's. Exactly the same rule must be observed when the caller lives with an unmarried brother or with a father who is a widower. His cards must always be left in exactly the same fashion.

When a friend is staying in the neighborhood and a call is made on her, if the caller is acquainted with the people of the house, she leaves her card upon them at her first visit. It is not correct to do so, however, if there is no acquaintance, unless, indeed, the fact of the mutual friendship induces both sides to wish that an acquaintance may be begun.

Girls with invalid or elderly mothers have frequently to make calls for them. When this is done, it is usual to say to the hostess, "I must leave my mother's embroider or paint some design and card for you, as she is unable to do her then apply this to one side of a similar own calling." In the same way, when there are no grown up daughters, a board of the same size and shape with husband is frequently obliged to call for material to correspond to that contain- his wife. He should never omit to leave her card for the hostess and to make some little remark of the same sort to Hints to Singers.

Mme. Meiba is credited with the following in an English exchange:

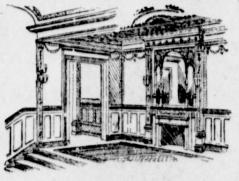

Few persons realize how much is added to the beauty of the natural voice by proper cultivation. Here the difficulty begins. The pupil must have competent teachers, and here arises the first obstacle in the way of the average student. If practicable, apply to a competent singer to assist in this matter.

Insist upon it, however, that the teacher chosen shall be a vocal teacher. Do not select a person who teaches various branches of music "and singing." A good vocal teacher has studied the physiology and hygiene of the vocal organs and has devoted much attention to the study of correct tone production, breathing, vocalization and the many other departments connected with the technical side of his profession and will have given special study to the famous operas, oratorios and the sacred and secular music written for the voice. He other one is enabled to win the charmwill find that the branch of music he has chosen to master is too engrossing all the world, and it is considered a and too exacting to admit of his devot- matter of very great surprise that the ing a part of his time to any other. But even then they may not be safe. The only absolute criterion is the progress made. Submit yourself absolutely to your instructor, follow accurately all his or her instructions, and if, after your lessons or practice times, your throat has any feeling of weariness or strain, or should you find at the end of your first term of lessons that your powers are not increasing, that your voice is your command over your voice not ineither with the method taught or with deposits are very rich. the teacher.

In the Modern American House.

The first striking feature of the interior of a truly modern American house is the hall. This no longer remains a simple corridor containing the stairway and serving for access to the various rooms. One of its developments, the reception hall, has become familiar even in comparatively unpretentious dwellings of recent erection, but the foyer

MASSENET'S NEW HOME,

The Great Composer Is Coming to America to Live.

M. Massenet, who since the death of Gouned and Ambroise Thomas holds the first place in the illustrious ranks of French composers, has decided to come to America, and in the near future Americans will have the pleasure of hearing "Manon," "Le Cid" and "La Navarraise' conducted by the great composer himself, who wields the baton with a masterly hand. "Je voudrais bien aller en Amerique," said M. Massenet just before he left France, and he veices the universal sentiment of the European artistic world.

Apparently every one in it seems to want to come to America. The day has gone by when foreign artists are content with successes in their own countries. "Il faut aller en Amerique"-one must go to America-is the universal cry, and American success has grown to mean as much to an artist upon returning to Europe as the reclame of their triumphs in their native lands meant to them before coming here.

The greatest artists seem to appreciate another important thing-that Americans are discerning and discriminating in their judgment and apt to estimate artistic excellence from a standpoint of absolute merit. Famous names, unless well carried, do not take the public in America. It is what artists are, not what they have been.

M. Massenet is best known to Americans through "Manon" and "La Navarraise," both of which were given last season in New York, when "Manon" was splendidly interpreted by Mme. Melba and M. Jean de Reszke and "La Navarraise' by Mme. Calve, for whom M. Massenet wrote the opera. - Chicago Times-Herald.

PLIGHT TROTH THERE.

The Famous "Plighting Stane o' Lairg" Removed to Canada.

love has just been placed in the Canadian Institute museum at Toronto. It is "The Plighting Stane o' Lairg." Its history goes farther back than any one can remember, far beyond the time DR. W. B. PENNY when records were kept. It is known, however, to have been used by the mystic Druids centuries before Robert Bruce and his bold clan made Scotland ring with their shouts and the sound of battle, for it is a Scottish stane, of course. Its name tells that.

It is declared by those who know that thousands of true Scottish hearts have plighted troth through an orifice near the top that was made by nature centuries ago. This remarkable Druidical relic would be a fit companion to the blarney stone, for, while by one the tongue gains power to charm, by the er. There is nothing like the stone in to be taken from the place where it has stood for centuries.

David Boyle, curator of the Canadian museum, treasures the stane as he would the apple of his eye. He is greatly enthused over the addition to the museum.

Marry Late In Life.

William Sexton, 99 years old, and Rachel Croft, 96 years old, were married at the Baptist church on Rockhouse Branch, Ky., Christmas day. The contracting parties are very highly respected people.

When the Blizzard Blows. Hear the surly visaged blizzard Madly nipping. Ripping, zipping, Till you're scissored To the gizzard And your nasal is congealed! Hear it round the forest whirling,

With a scowling, Growling, howling, All the poodle's coat uncurling, Till the bark is from him peeled! Hear its moaning through the valley, Wildly thumping.

Bumping, jumping! See it rally. With a sally, While it with the snowdrift scoots! See it, like a flend of bloodshed, Swiftly dashing.

Crashing, lashing, While it pulls the flimsy woodshed To its bosom by the roots! While across the land it's whining. Madly winging.

Ringing, stinging, Drown your pining Brew that makes the spirit glad. Rich e'en as the fairy plumber O'er its beaming, Steaming, dreaming, Then you'll feel the rose of summer Burst beneath your liver pad.
